Q.4. Public-Private Partnership (PPP) in Sindh is a structured, long-term contractual arrangement between the Government (public sector) and private entities to develop, finance, and operate public infrastructure or services. The primary goal is to improve public service delivery by leveraging private sector expertise, technology, and capital, effectively transitioning the government from a direct service provider to a regulator.

Here are the key details about PPP in KPK:

May Exam-2026

Solutions – Provincial Receipts, Expenditure & Receipts of Autonomous Bodies (Application) (KPK)

1. Legal and Institutional Framework

KPK Public-Private Partnership Act, 2014: This law governs all PPP projects in the province, outlining the rules, procedures, and institutional arrangements. It has been amended periodically (e.g., in 2018 and 2025) to improve efficiency and attract foreign investment.

PPP Unit: A specialized unit established within the Finance Department to promote, facilitate, and assist government agencies in executing PPP projects.

PPP Policy Board: The final authority responsible for approving projects, policies, and selecting private partners.

Project Support Facility (PSF): Acts as a financial intermediary to provide funding, such as viability gap funding (VGF), for projects that are socially important but not financially viable.

2. Key Sectors and Projects

KPK has one of the most active PPP frameworks in Pakistan, focusing on both infrastructure and social sectors.

Transport & Infrastructure: Swat Express way Ph-I & II, Bannu Link Road, Indus Highway (N-55) Hakla D.I Khan Motorway (M-14)

Tourism: Integrated Tourism Zones (ITZs) are planned for Ganool and Mankiyal to boost tourism and infrastructure.

Health: KPK Health Foundation

Institutional Support: The KPK P&D Department is strengthening its PPP Support Unit to facilitate these projects.

3. Key Principles

Risk Sharing: Risks are allocated to the party best able to manage them.

Performance-Based: Private partners are paid based on performance and quality of service.

Competitive Bidding: Projects are awarded through open, transparent competitive bidding to ensure value for money.

2025 Amendment: Recently updated to include a mechanism for international arbitration in certain projects, making it more attractive to foreign investors.

4. Benefits

Improved Quality: Access to better technology and management practices.

Financial Relief: Reduces the immediate financial burden on the government.

Timely Delivery: Faster completion of infrastructure projects compared to traditional procurement.

The KPK Unit has been recognized as a top performer in Asia due to its active and structured approach to private sector participation.

- Q.5. The Higher Education Commission (HEC) of Pakistan operates as the federal regulatory and funding body for all higher education institutions, including provincial universities. Following the 18th Constitutional Amendment (2010), higher education became a provincial subject, creating a dual-layered relationship where universities are administratively governed by provincial departments/commissions but accredited and academically monitored by the Federal HEC. The relationship between the HEC Pakistan and provincial universities is structured around quality assurance, accreditation, degree recognition, and funding for research and infrastructure.

Key Aspects of the HEC and Provincial Universities Relationship

Recognition and Accreditation: HEC Pakistan is the sole authority for recognizing degrees. Provincial universities must be recognized by the HEC for their degrees to be accepted nationally and internationally.

Quality Assurance: While provinces manage administrative aspects, HEC sets the national standards for quality. This includes monitoring MPhil/PhD programs, establishing Quality Enhancement Cells (QECs), and overseeing faculty appointment criteria (e.g., Tenure Track System).

Funding Mechanism: Provincial universities receive recurring grants from their respective provincial governments. However, HEC still plays a major role in funding research, providing access to digital libraries, and supporting major infrastructure development projects (often on a cost-sharing basis).

Curriculum Development: HEC facilitates the revision of curricula to align with international norms, which provincial universities are expected to follow.

Establishment of New Institutions: While a province can charter a university, the HEC is responsible for quality assurance and accreditation of the new institution, ensuring it meets the established academic standards.

The Context of Provincial HECs (KPK)

In provinces like KPK and KPK, provincial Higher Education Commissions (e.g., Sindh HEC) have been established to manage administrative matters and funds. The Federal HEC acts as an apex body, ensuring these provincial commissions comply with national policies, based on a 2011 Supreme Court ruling that maintained the supremacy of the Federal HEC regarding standards, despite the 18th Amendment.
